What does our Cash Flow Statements course cover?

Why Do I Need a Cash Flow Statement?

If you're dealing with your company's accounts, you'll likely have an idea about the importance of cold, hard cash to a business.

But when you receive cash -- or indeed spend it -- you've simply got to deal with it in the correct way. Which means creating a Cash Flow Statement (or CFS).

Why? Simply put, a CFS is important not only for looking at a business's overall financial health, but to check its operating profitability. This means adjusting for payment periods (both for both sales and purchases) and for things like equipment purchases and loans.

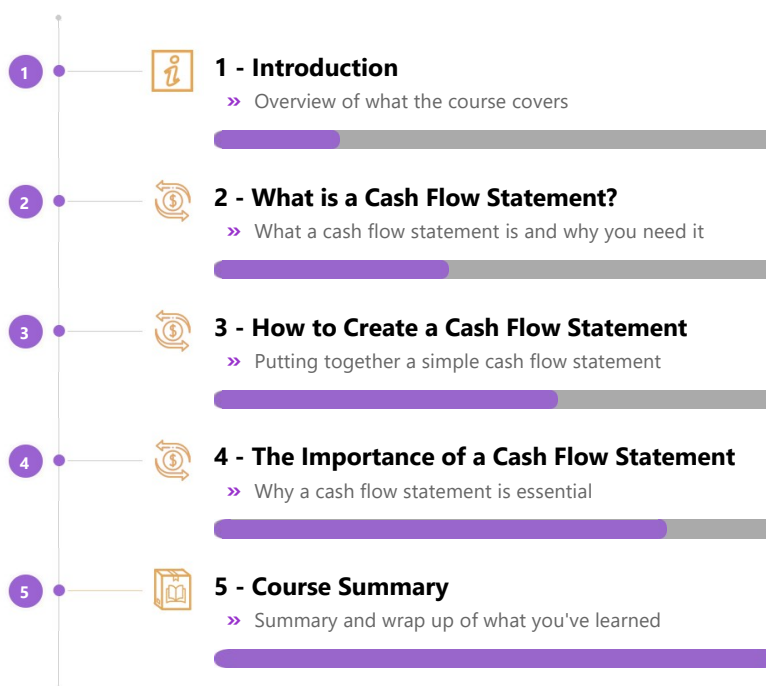

We show you how a Cash Flow Statement enables you to know how much cash is available to pay your bills and plan operations.

This Cash Flow Course skills training course, like all our courses, has been developed over many years of classroom and online delivery. Content has been thoroughly researched and is constantly updated so it's always leading edge. It's completely interactive and is full of practical knowledge and solutions.

Still wondering whether to do the course?

Just think about this: how much would you benefit if you had better cash flow course skills?
